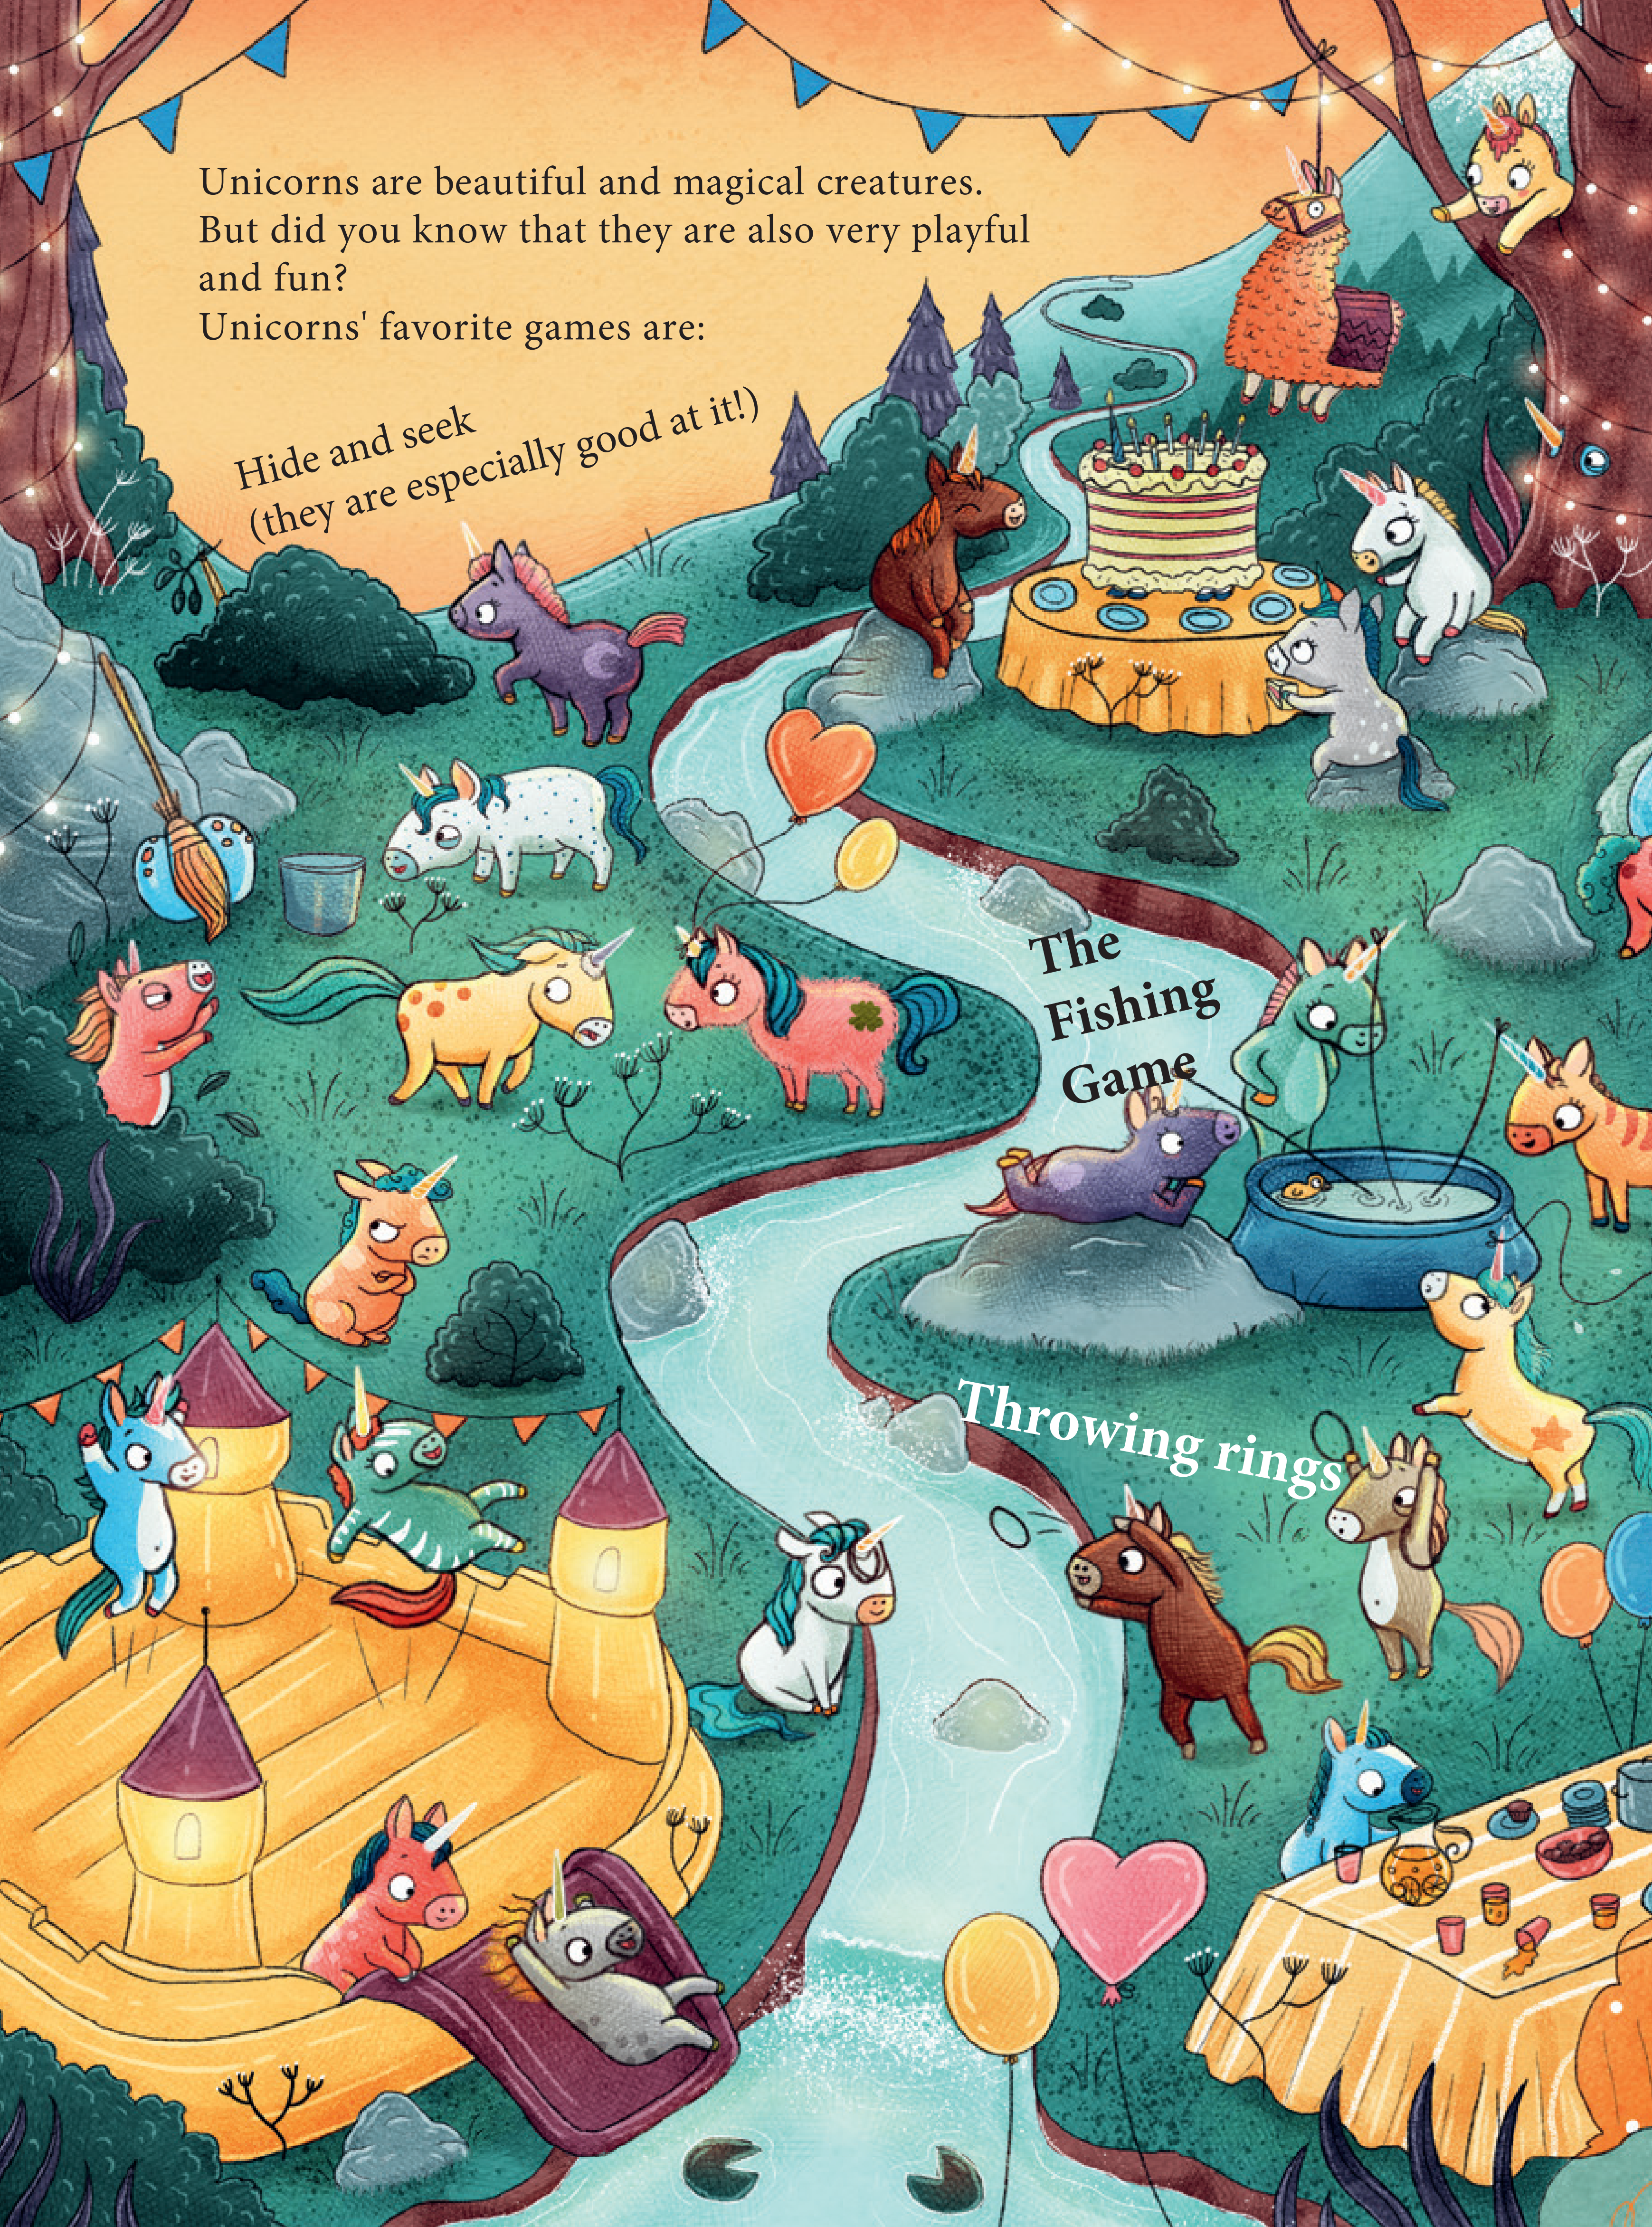
Unicorns are beautiful and magical creatures. But did you know that they are also very playful and fun?
Unicorns' favorite games are:



Hide and seek
(they are especially good at it!)

The Fishing Game

Every unicorn is unique _ it's just like us humans. There are naughty unicorns and sweet unicorns, shy unicorns and cheeky unicorns. Some unicorns can make up exciting stories, others build artistic towers or paint the most colorful pictures.

But all unicorns have one thing in common: they love imagination. They are full of imagination themselves and they can smell it too. So here's a little tip: the more imaginative you play, the more likely it is that a unicorn will get curious and come and see what you're doing.

Unicorns live in the unicorn world.

In the human world there are secret entrances to the unicorn world in all places that have "horn" in the name. For example, one is at Cape Horn, the most southern point of South America. Another is on the Matterhorn, one of the highest mountains in the Swiss Alps.

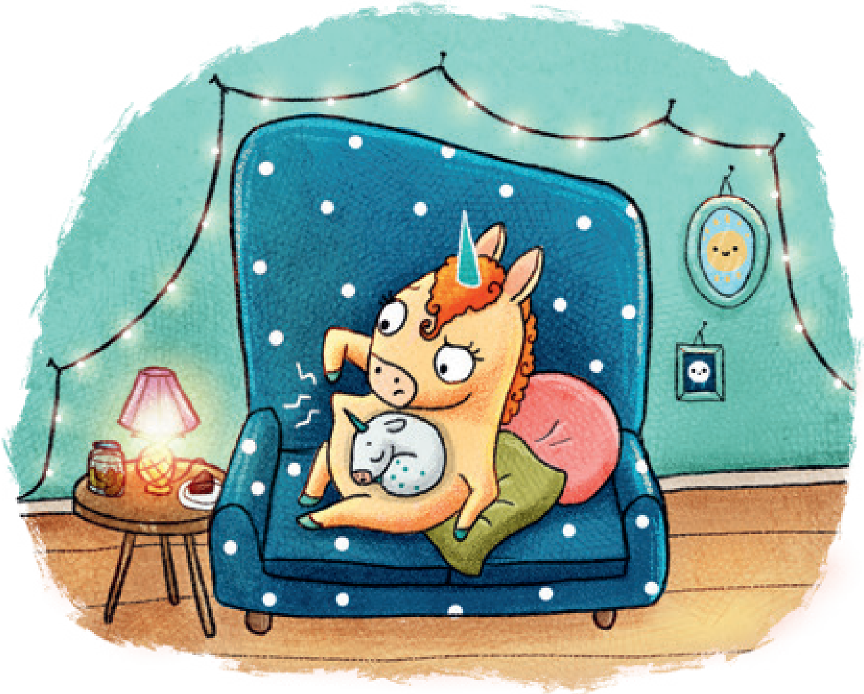
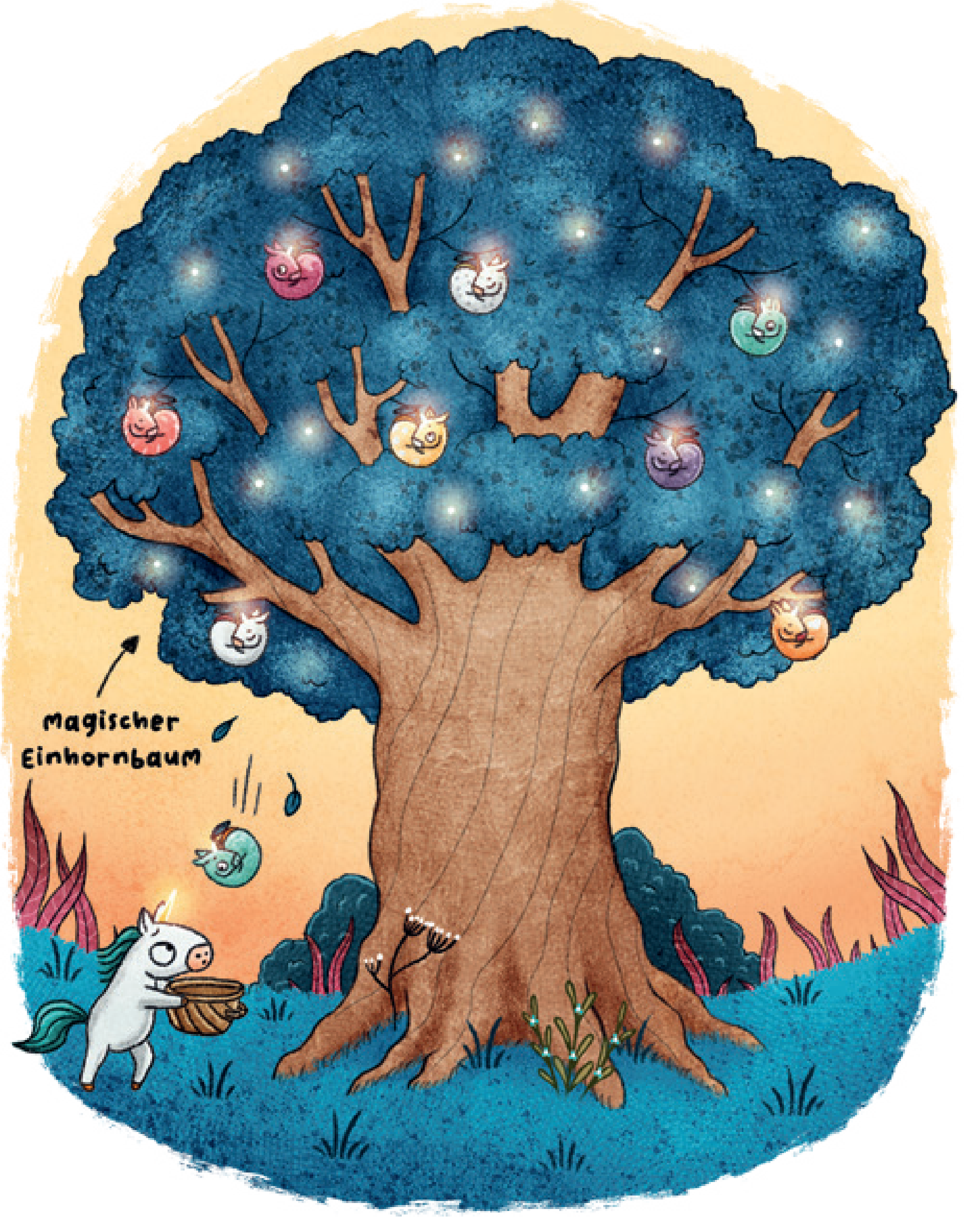
When unicorns in the human world travel between different places, they can conjure up a rainbow as a shortcut. All the unicorns have to do is gallop through it, then they can get from one from one country to another without having to walk all the way.

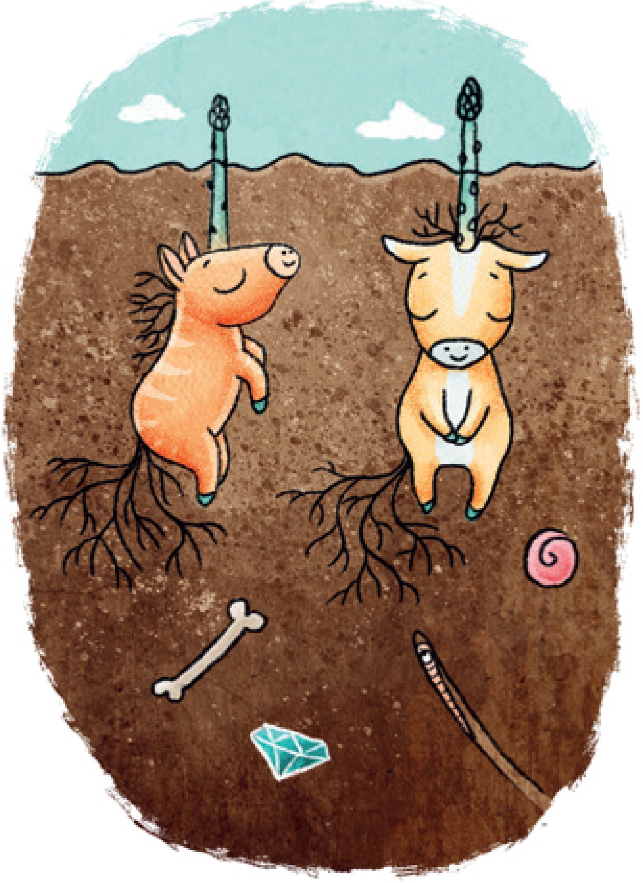
Human children grow up in their mother's womb. With unicorns it is different, because unicorn babies have a horn onthe forehead, which would pick their mummy in the belly _ even though it is of course still very small in unicorn babies.





An old legend says that unicorns grow on trees, like apples. But then the the unicorn babies would eventually plop on the floor. That would be far too dangerous!

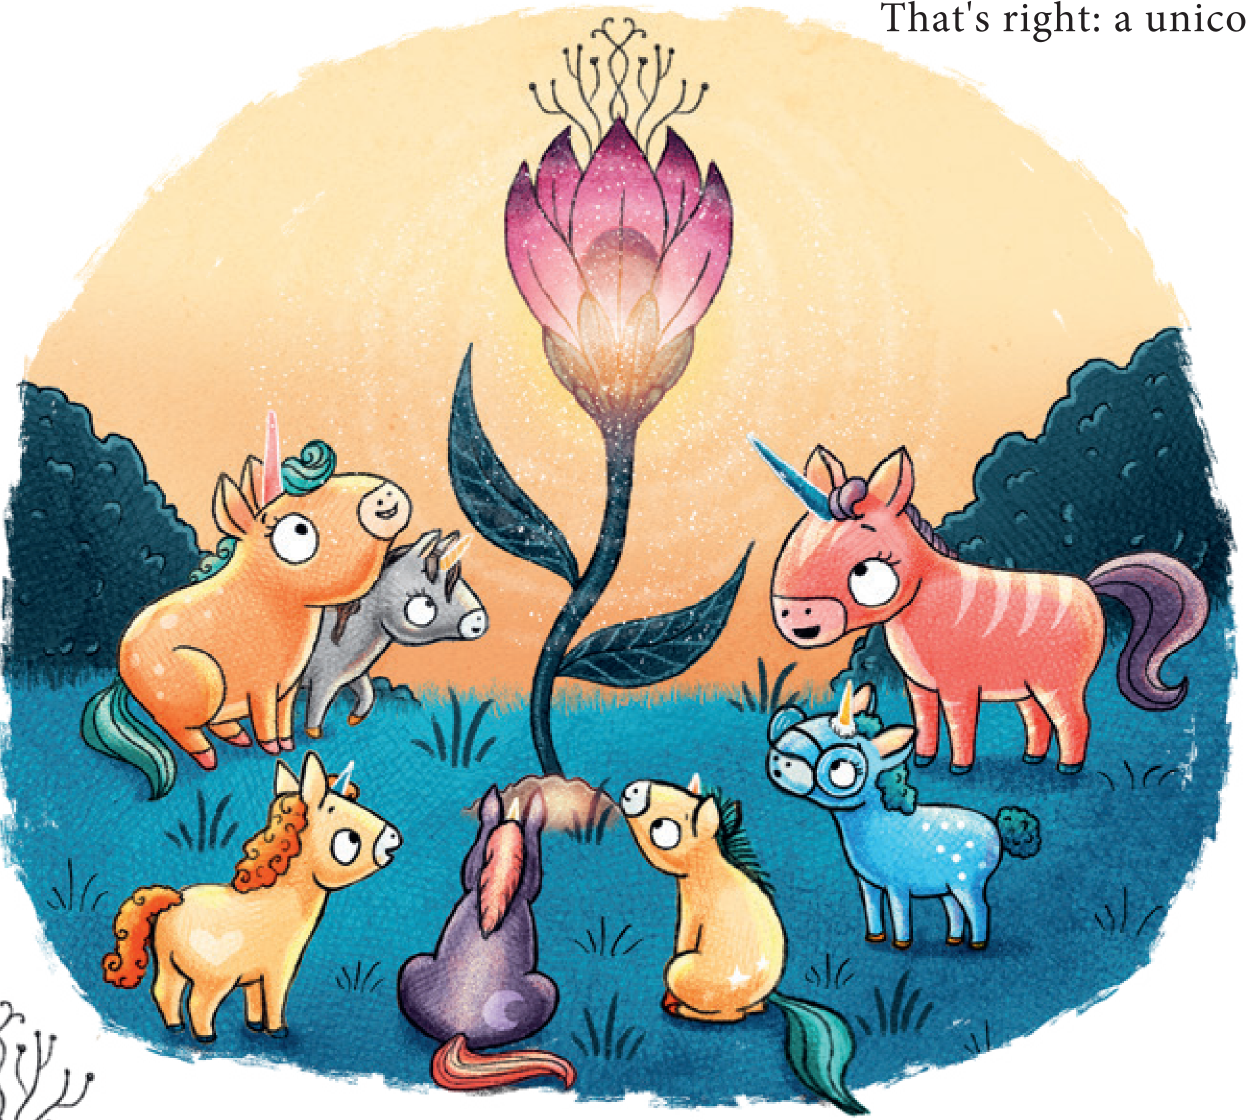
For a while, people actually thought unicorns grew in the ground, like potatoes. But then that was just asparagus.



No, with unicorns it is like this: when a unicorn family wholeheartedly wants a baby, a magic flower grows for them.

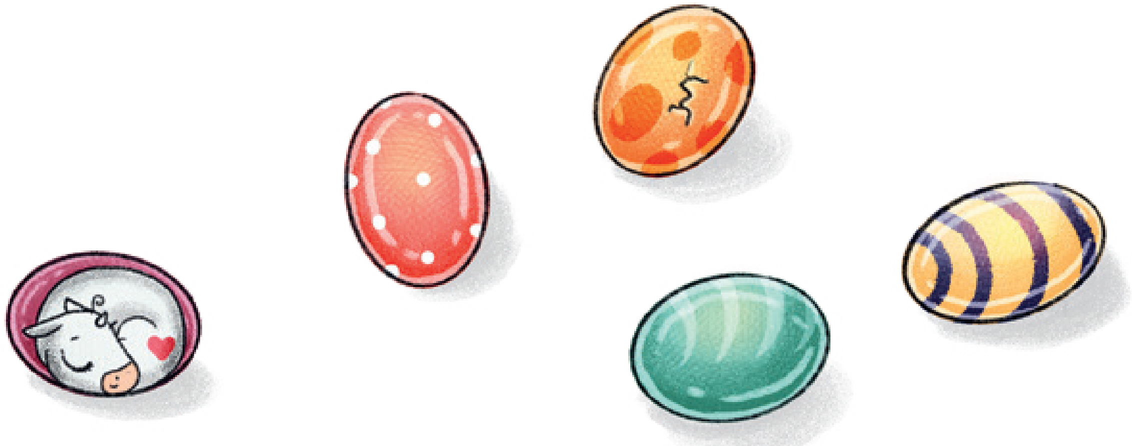
This magic flower gets a blossom after about seven days, and inside this blossom lies a beautiful, unique egg. You've probably already guessed what's inside.

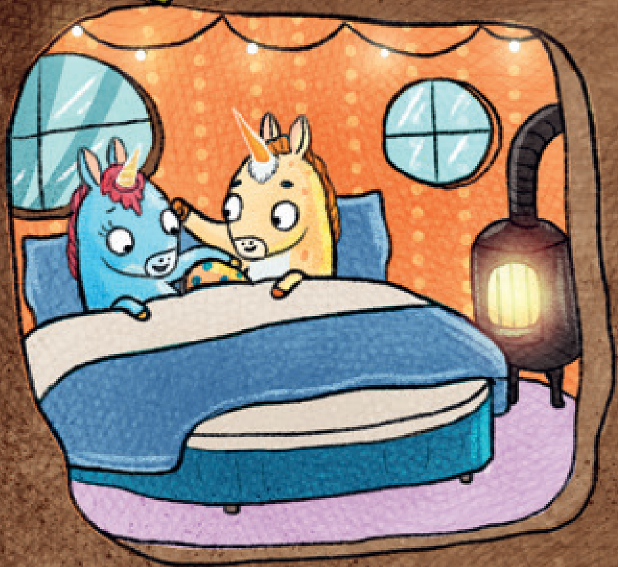
That's right: a unicorn baby!



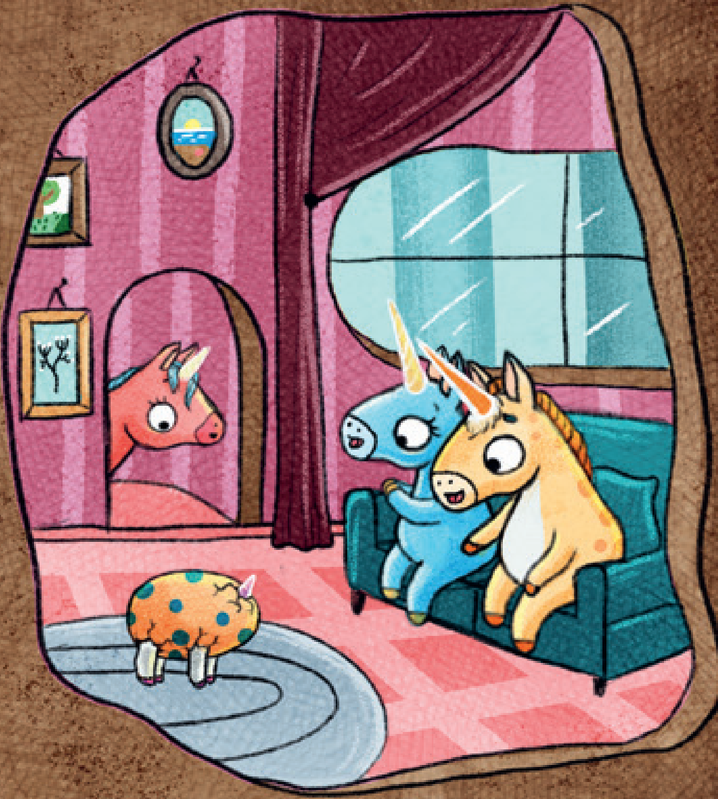
Some magic flowers have several blossoms, then the family gets twins or triplets.

This is what unicorn eggs look like:

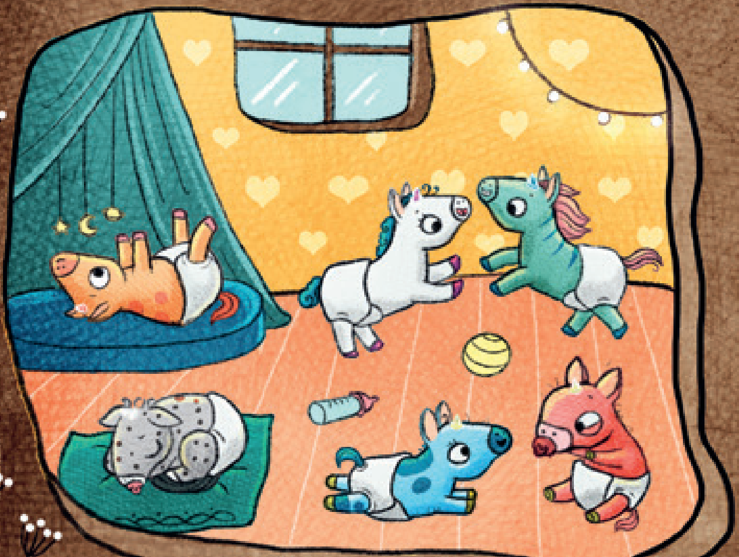




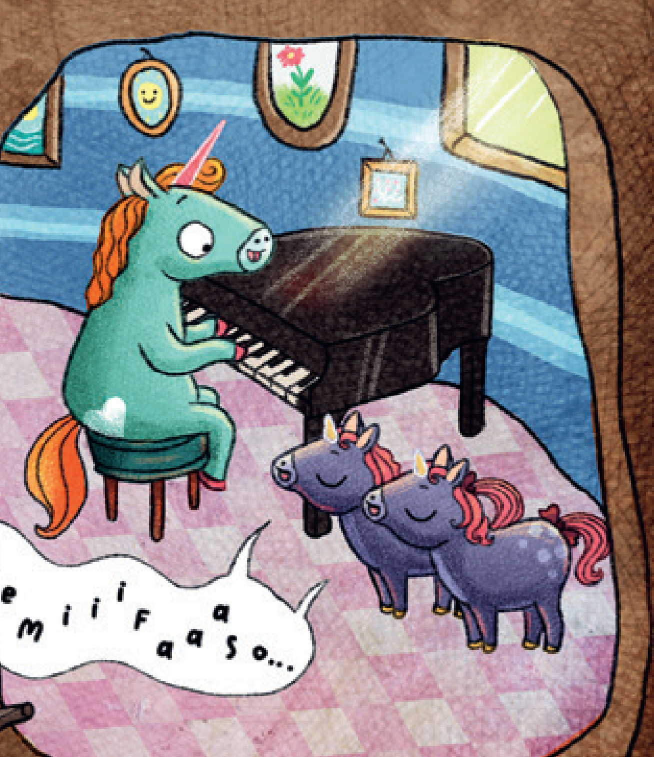
When the blossom of the magic flower has opened, the family picks the egg. And then it must be snuggled warmly for three days and nights.



On the fourth day, the baby unicorn pricks the eggshell with its tiny little horn.



Shortly after hatching, it's still a little wobbly on its feet, but soon it can hop around with the other unicorn babies.



Dooreeemiiifaaaso...

The little unicorns are called minicorns because their horns are still so small. Their fur is especially soft and they have a very high, squeaky voice.

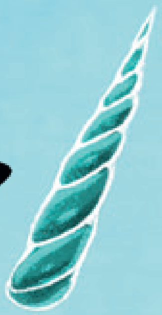
Unicorns can choose their own names as they can already speak as babies. Many unicorns choose magical names like star dance or silver cloud. But Kurt and Trudi are also very popular names among unicorns.

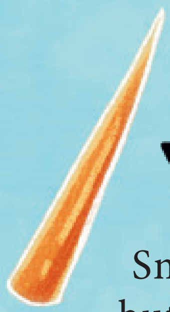
The horns can look very different.

Twisted horns



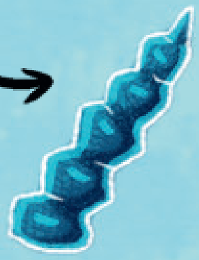
Twisted horns: have most unicorns. Like humans, there are right horns and left horns, depending on how around the horn turns.Each twist represents one year of life.

Smooth Horns



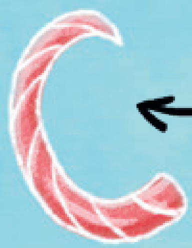
Smooth horns: particularly shiny, but also high maintenance. Smooth horns must be regularly polished with glitter to keep them beautiful.

Step horns

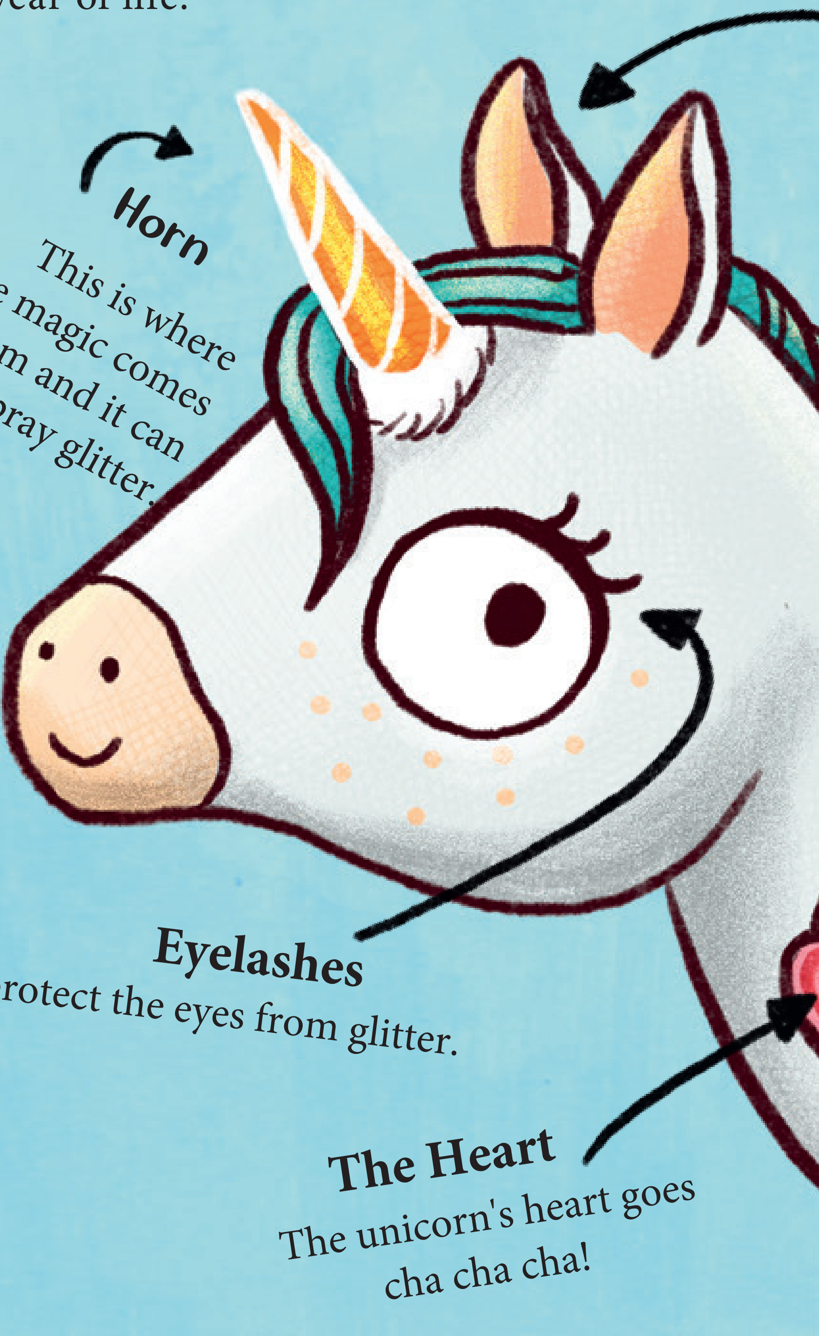


Step horns: as the name suggests, grow in steps and look a bit knobbly. From the steps you can see how old the unicorn is.

Crooked horns



Crooked horns: very rare _ it is said unicorns with a curved horn descend from the giant prehistoric saber-toothed unicorns.



Horn

This is where the magic comes from and it can also spray glitter.

Eyelashes

protect the eyes from glitter.

The Heart

The unicorn's heart goes cha cha cha!

Unicorn blood

is shiny and silver. When hey get hurt the wound closes very quickly again..

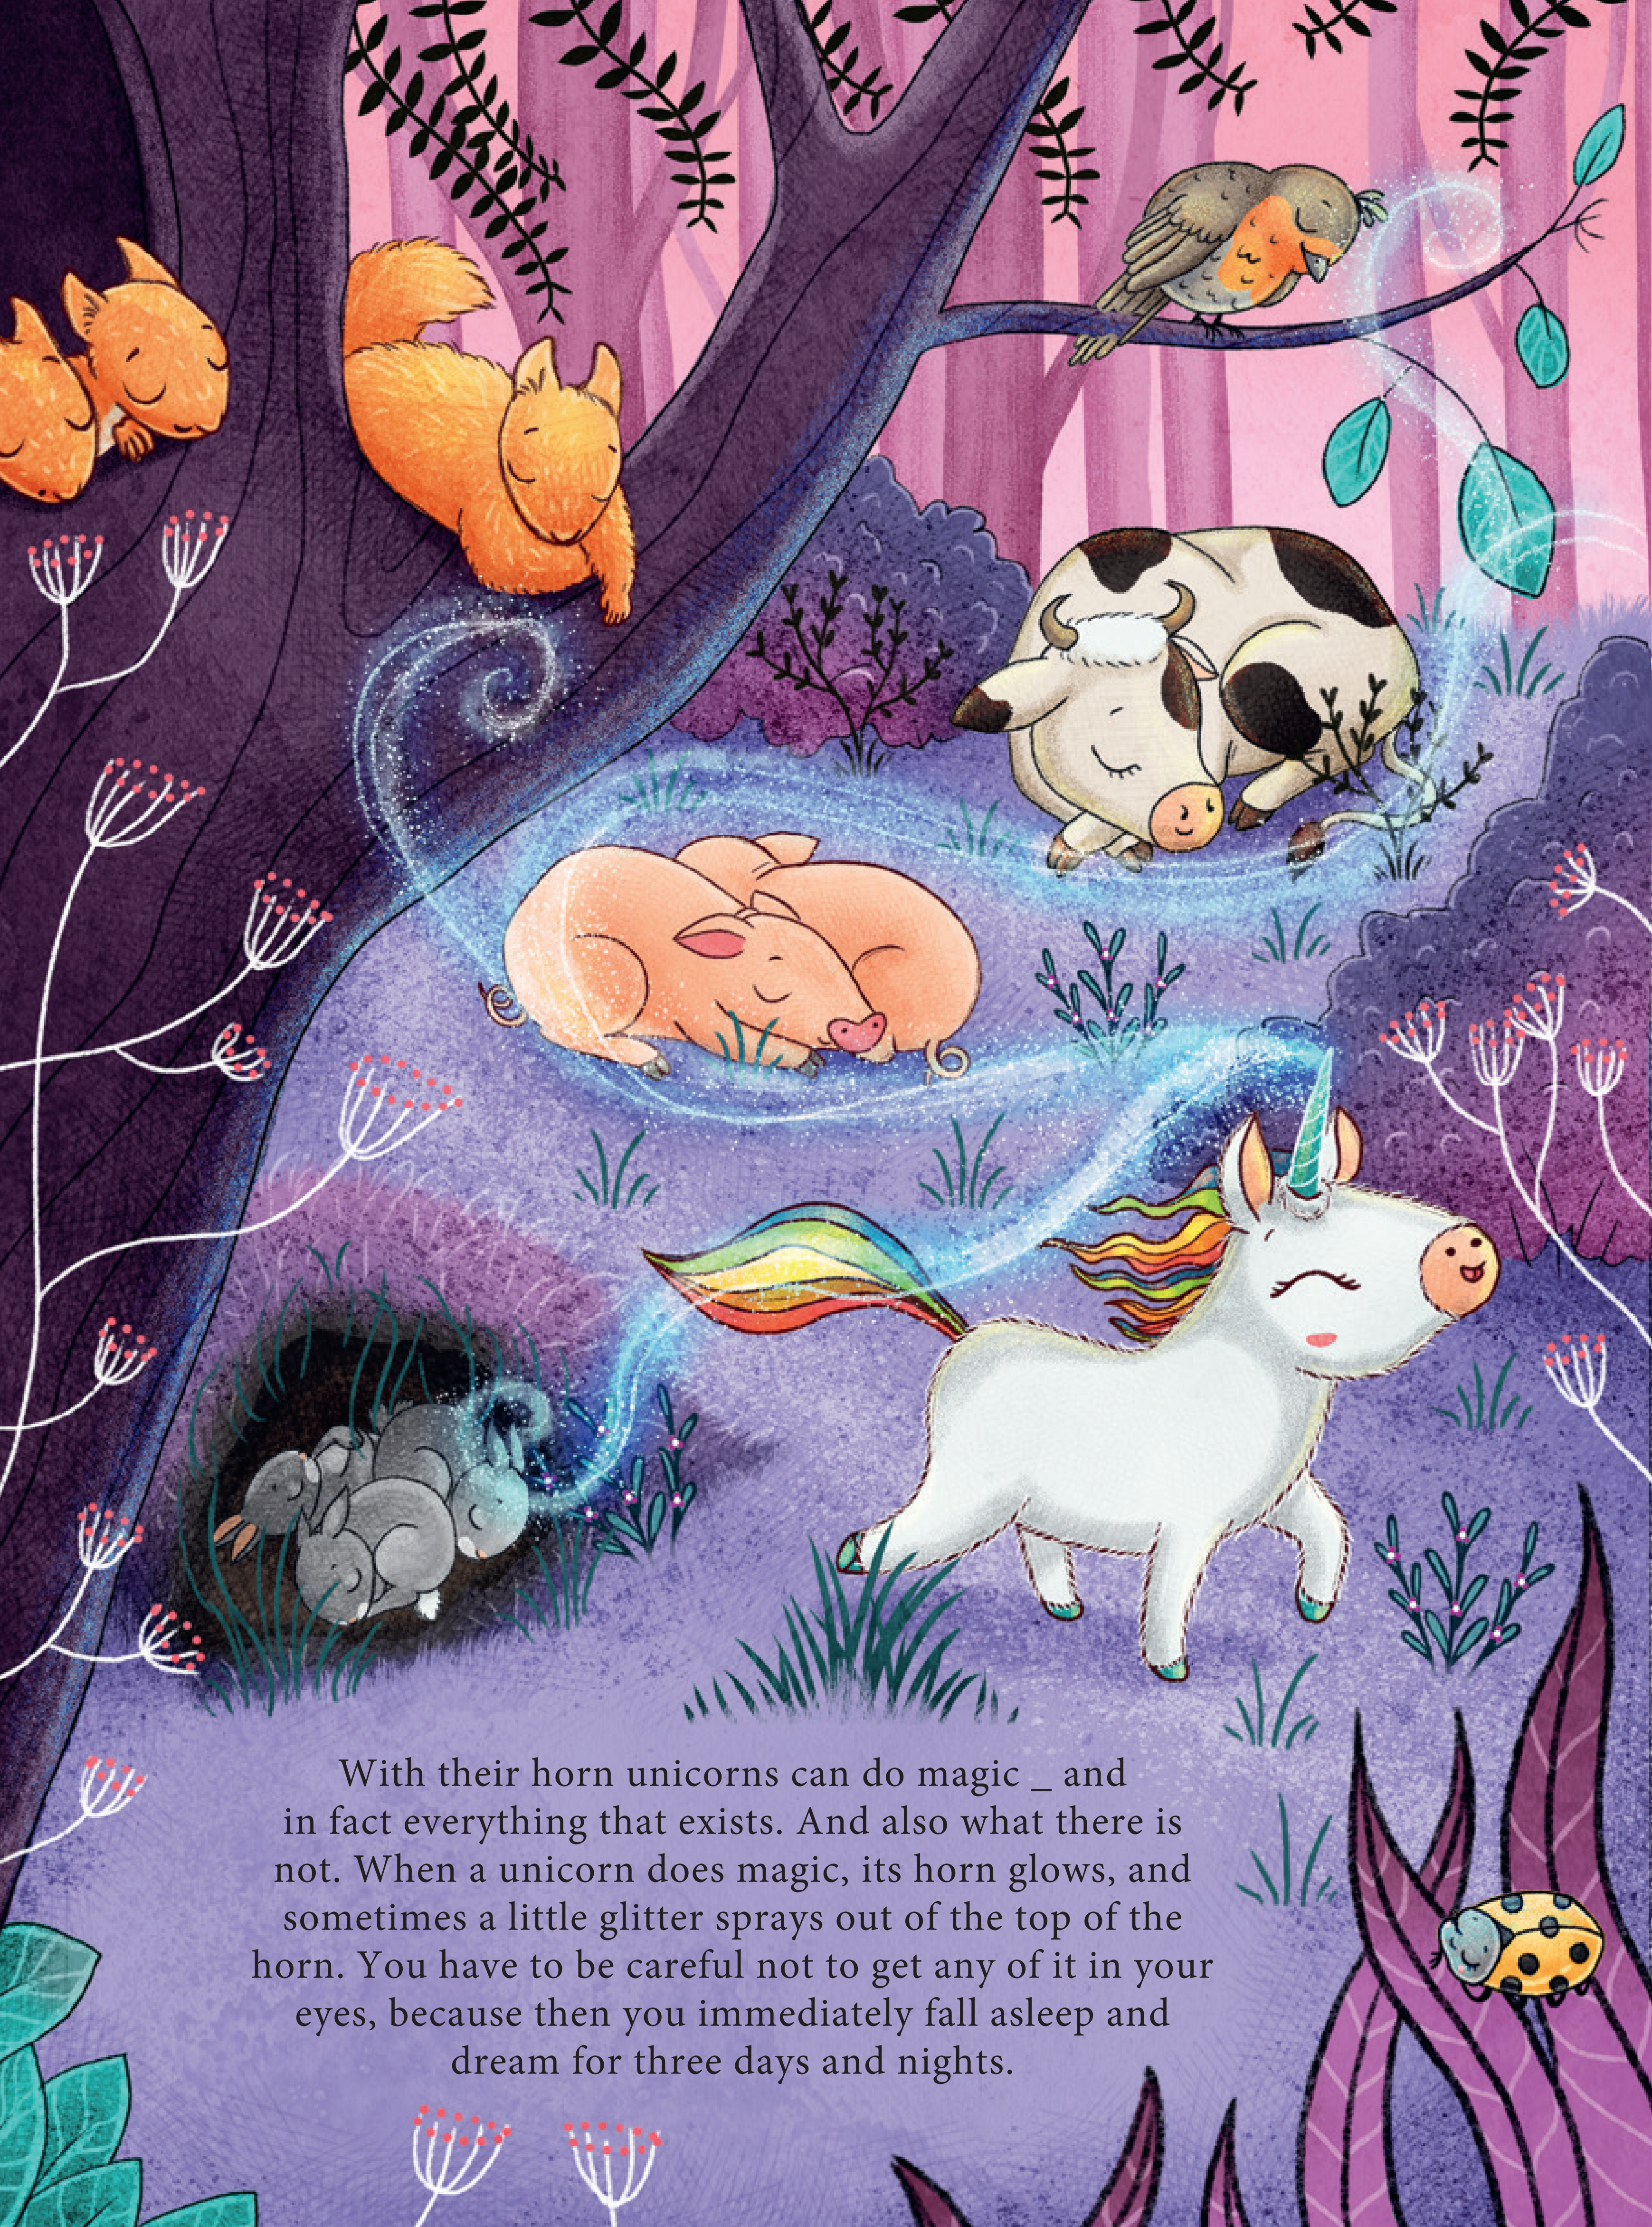
Unicorns, like cows, have several stomachs. In each stomach the food they ate gets another color. That's why unicorn poop is rainbow colored.



With their horn unicorns can do magic _ and in fact everything that exists. And also what there is not. When a unicorn does magic, its horn glows, and sometimes a little glitter sprays out of the top of the horn. You have to be careful not to get any of it in your eyes, because then you immediately fall asleep and dream for three days and nights.

Such a horn is a practical thing _ not only for casting spells. Unicorns can also do this:

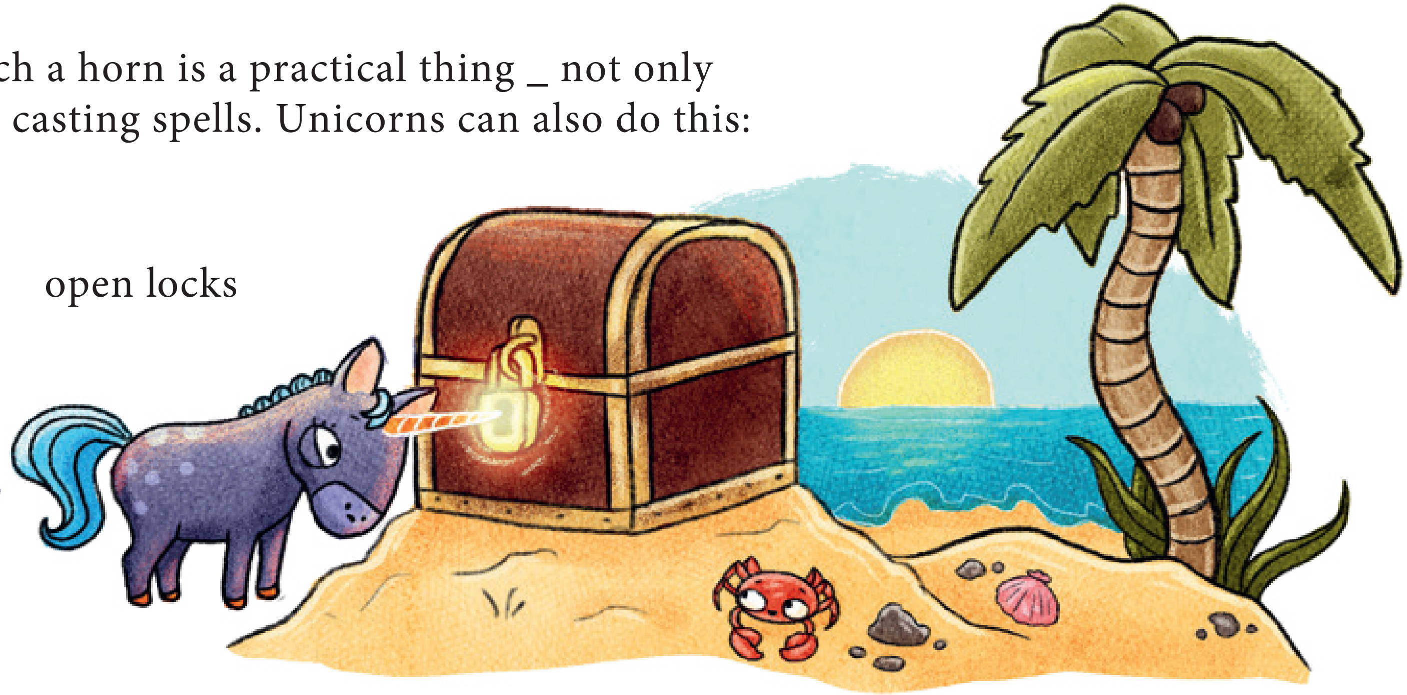
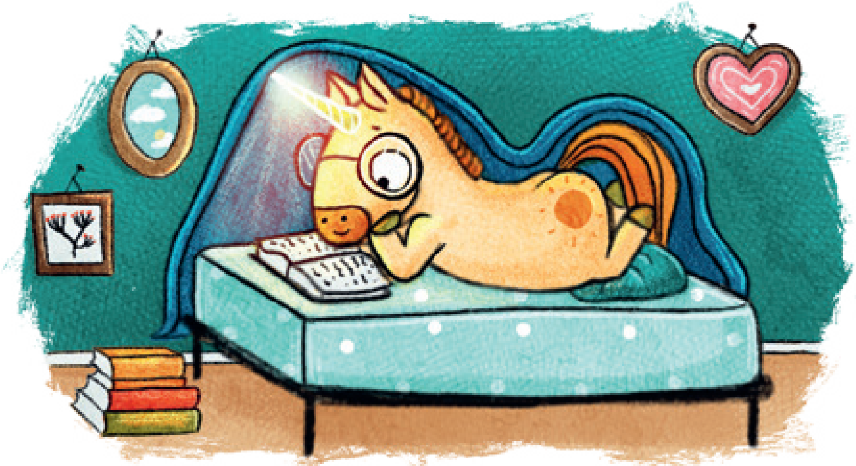
open locks



(that's why you cannot keep unicorns prisoners)



They work great as a quilt holder
and reading lamp in bed.

You can pop balloons. (Unicorns like to do this on New Year's Eve).

In addition, the horn is an excellent holder for umbrellas ...

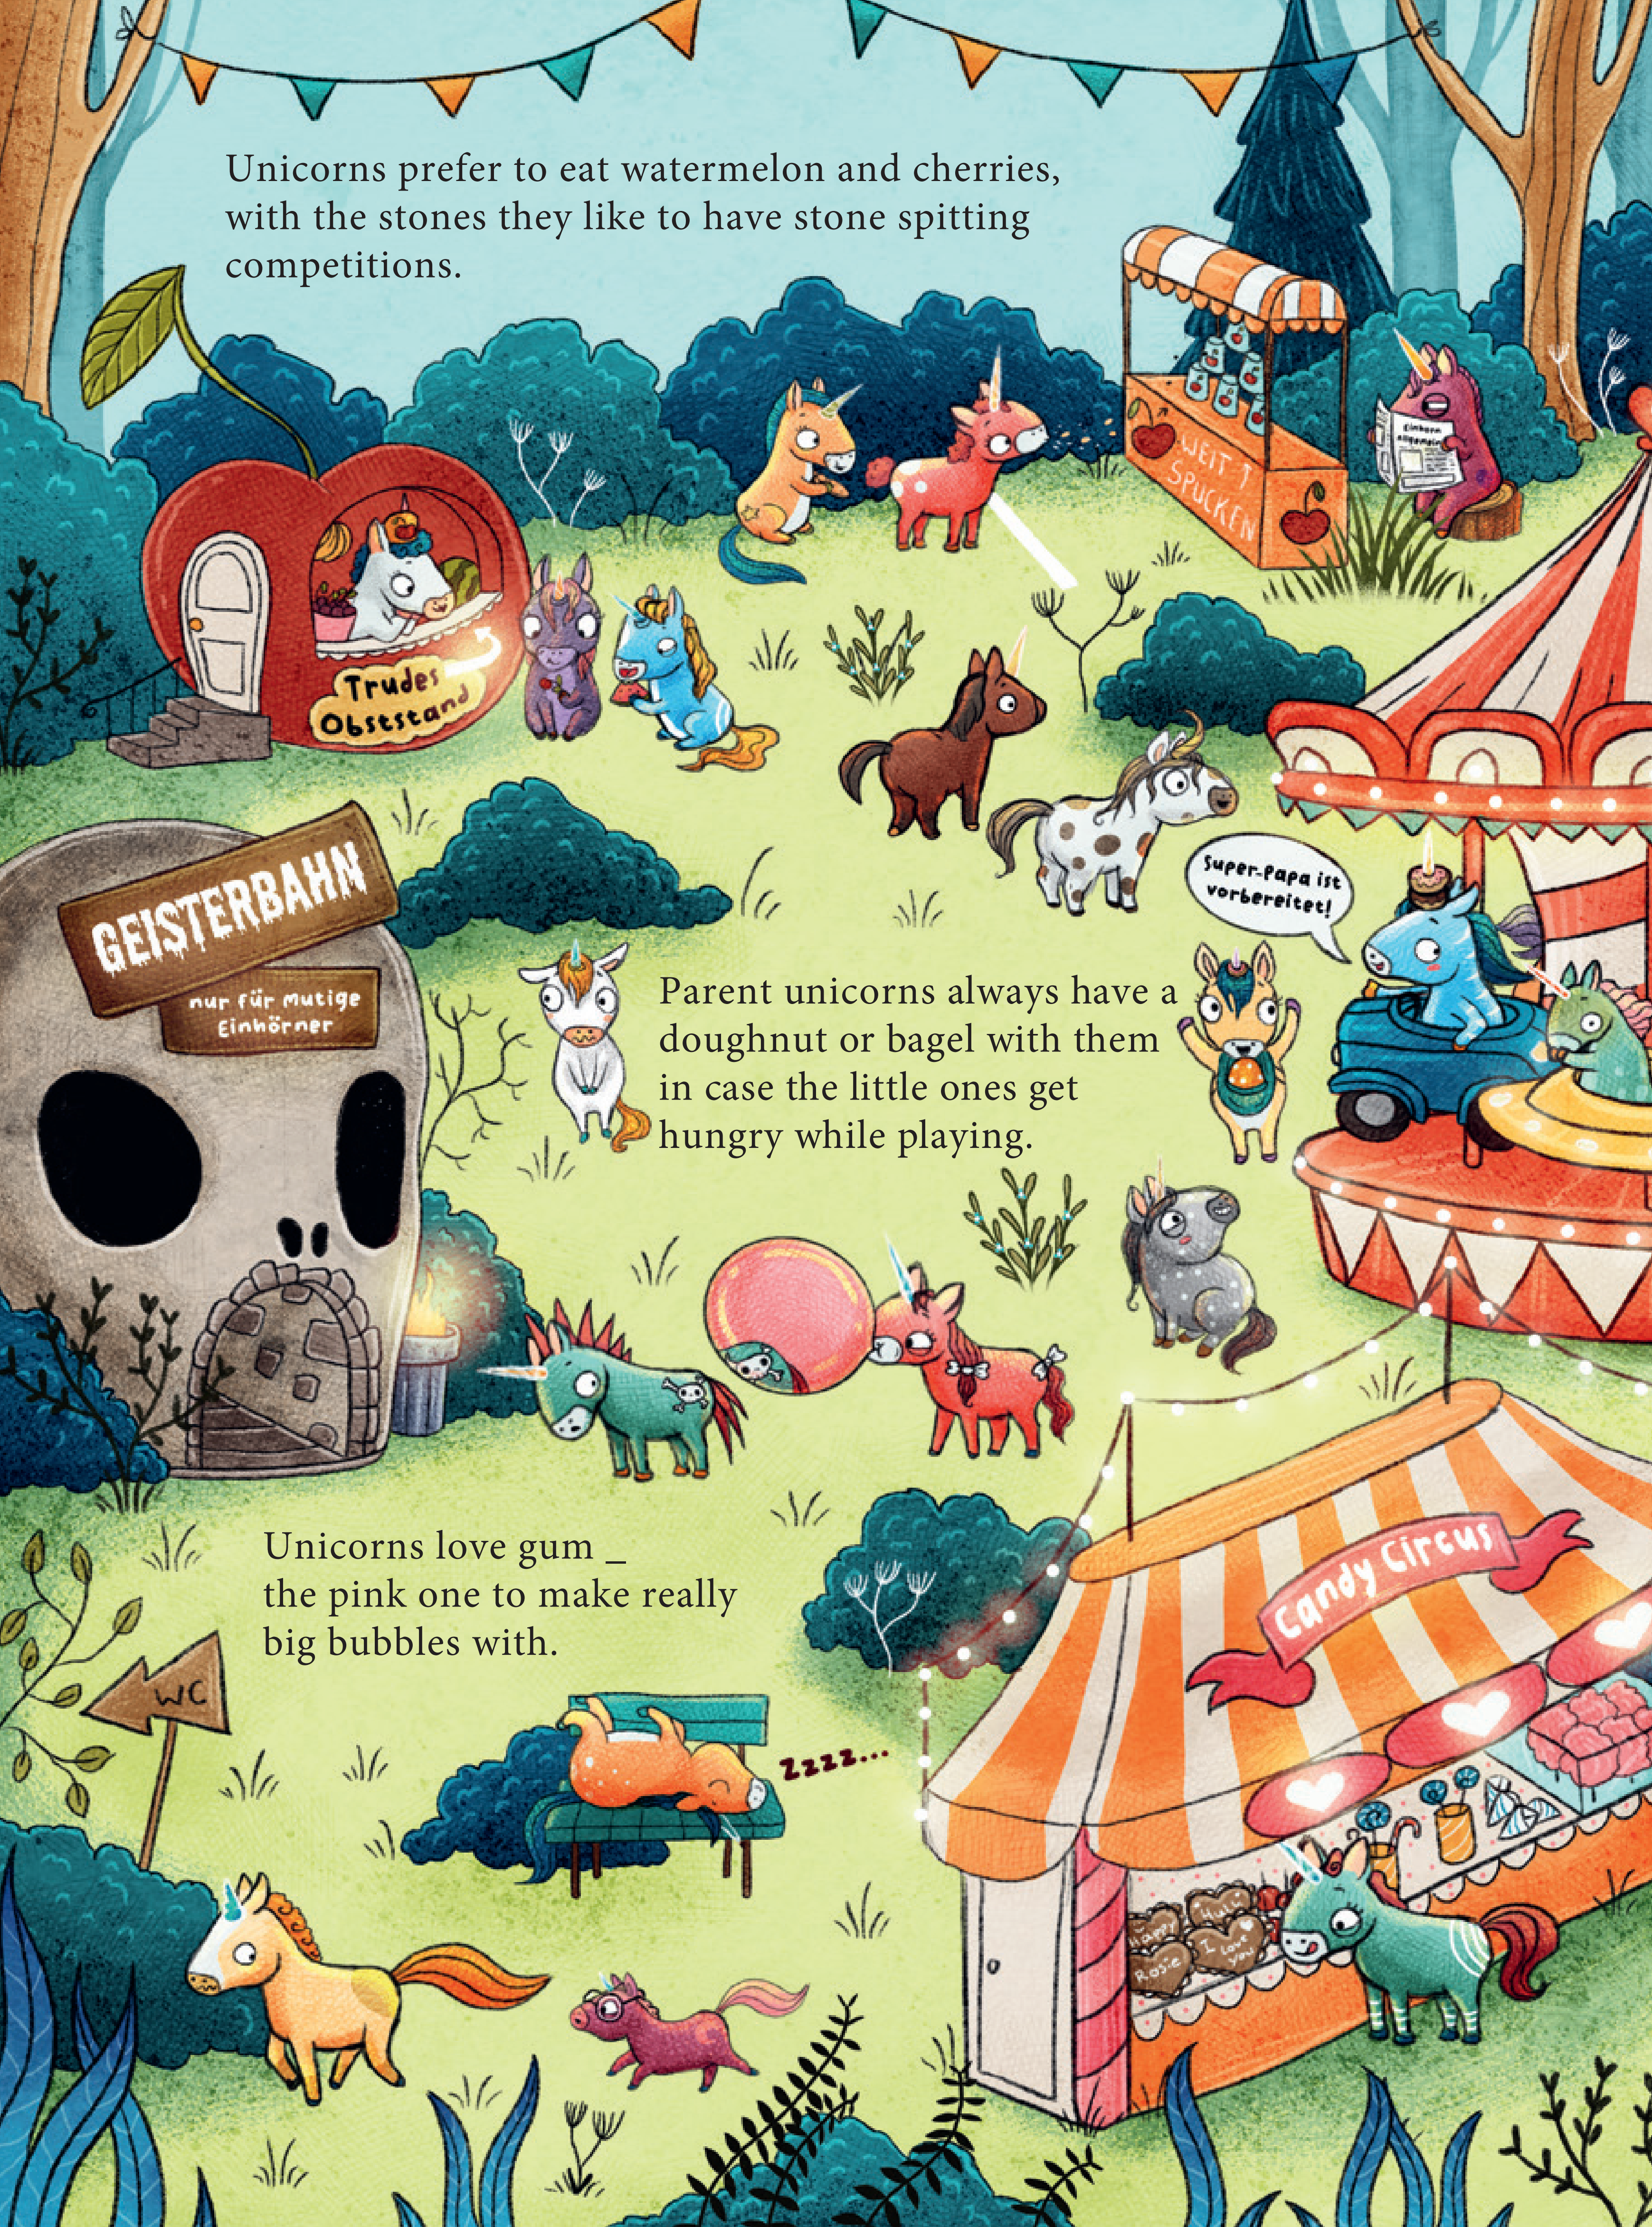
... and toilet paper.



Unicorns prefer to eat watermelon and cherries, with the stones they like to have stone spitting competitions.

Parent unicorns always have a doughnut or bagel with them in case the little ones get hungry while playing.

Unicorns love gum _ the pink one to make really big bubbles with.

Also, unicorns love to eat chickpeas. Why? You'll find out later.

Unicorn poop always resembles the horn of the unicorn.

Step horns poop different size apples.

Stepping into a pile of unicorns is fortunately not as bad as stepping into
a dog pile.
That's because of two reasons:
First, unicorn poop always smells like either
strawberry jam or vanilla cookies
(although no one knows why).
And second, it brings good luck.
Still, unicorns prefer to go to the bathroom,
when they have to _ but there isn't always one free.

Unicorns do not have wings,
but they can still fly a little bit!
Because unicorns can gallop very fast _
much faster than horses. Even faster than race cars.
And because they are so focused on being fast,
they sometimes forget to touch the ground with their hooves. Then they fly a little bit, sort of by accident.

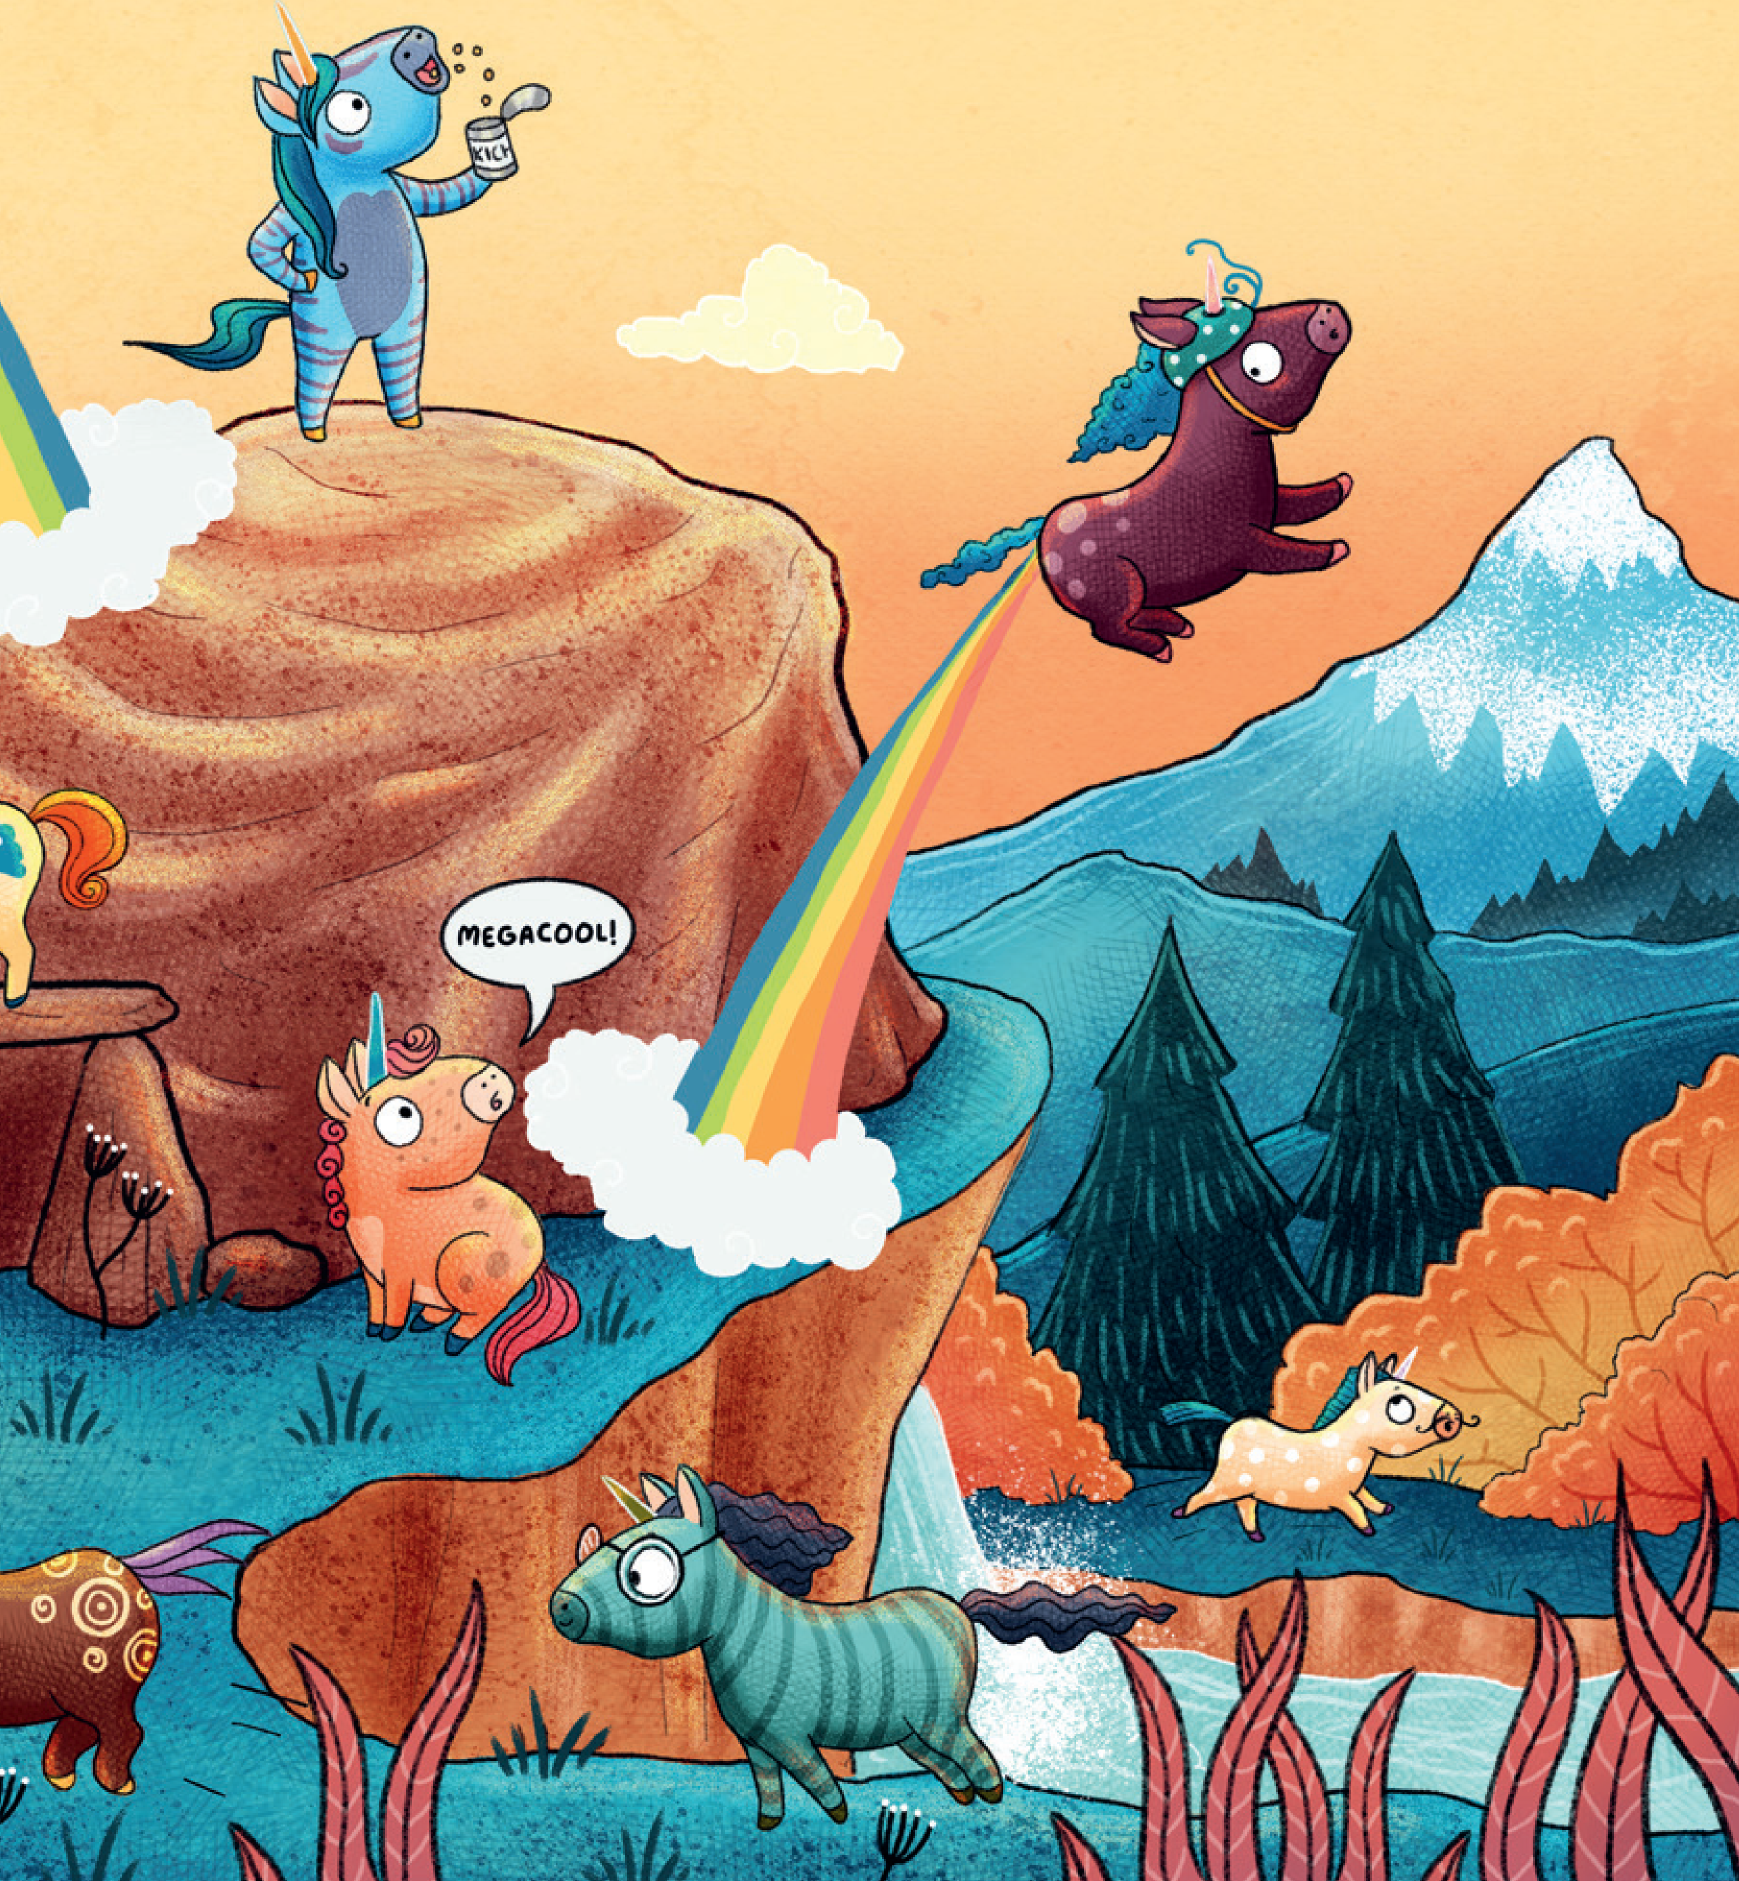
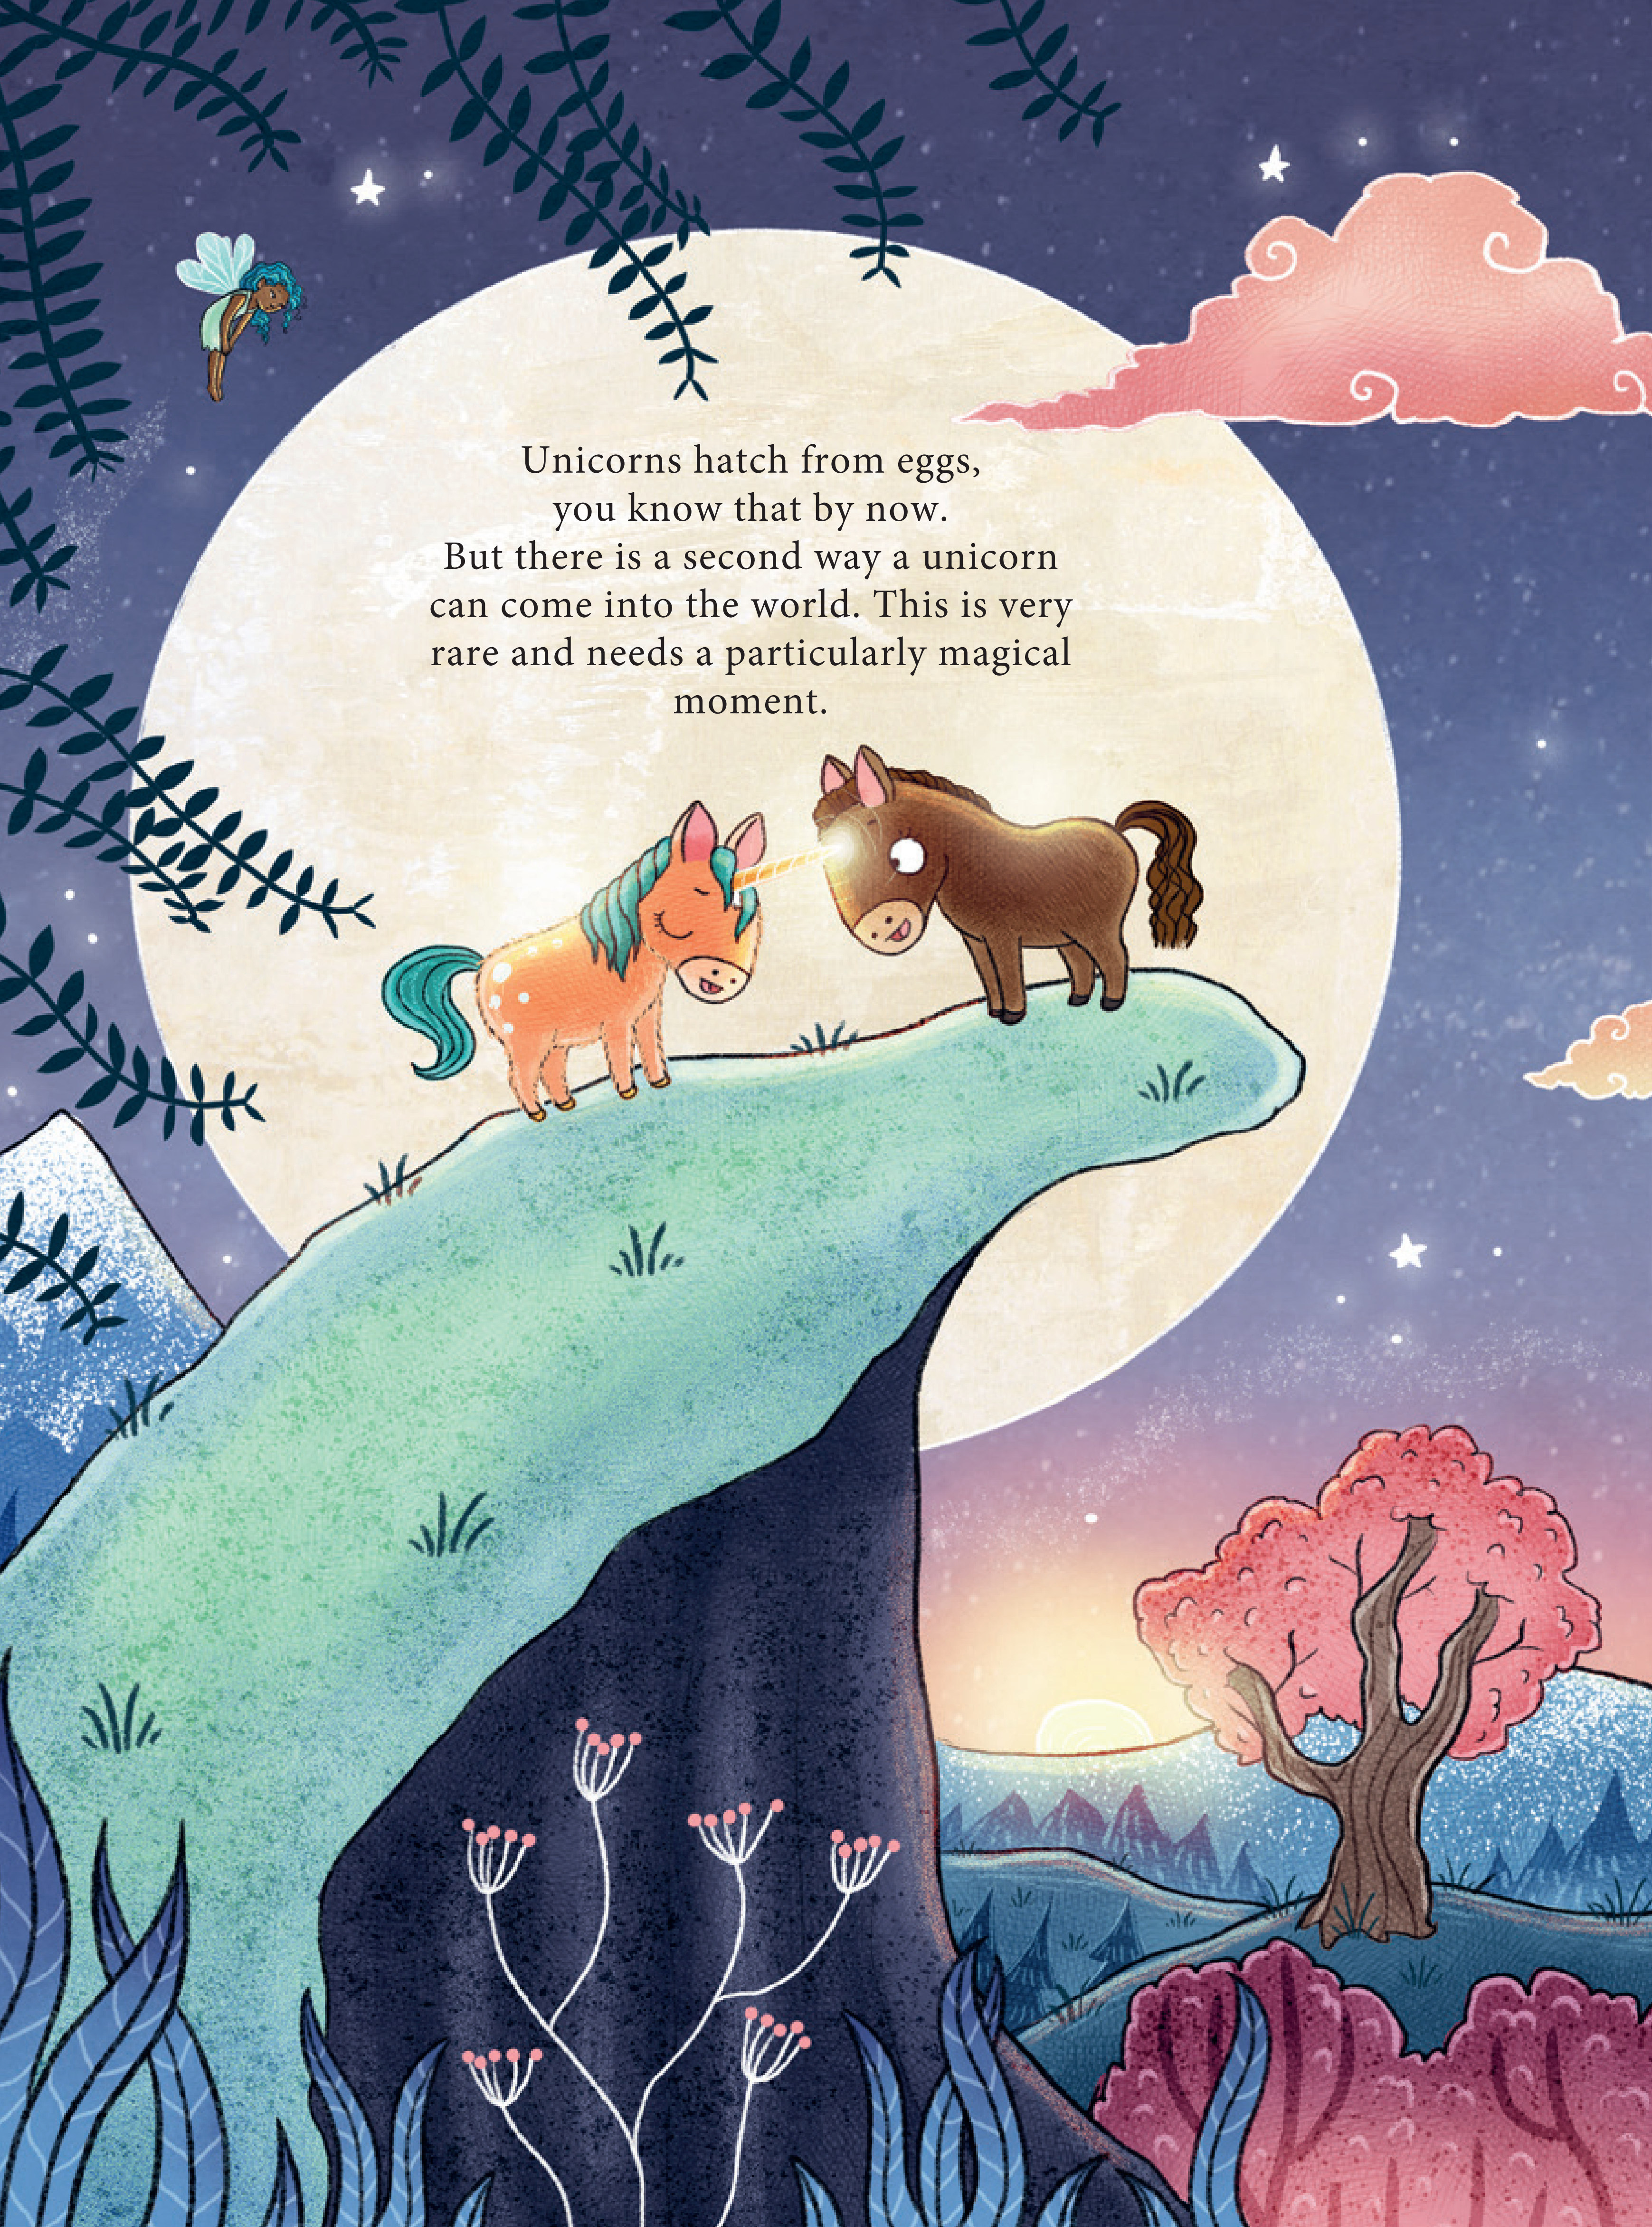
If they want to fly properly, there is a little trick. They eat lots of chickpeas beforehand, and they have to fart. When unicorns fart, a rainbow-colored jet of air comes out of their butt _ and off they zoom, like with a real turbo engine! Of course, this is a lot of fun, which is why unicorns love to eat chickpeas.





Unicorns hatch from eggs,
you know that by now.
But there is a second way a unicorn can come into the world. This is very rare and needs a particularly magical moment.

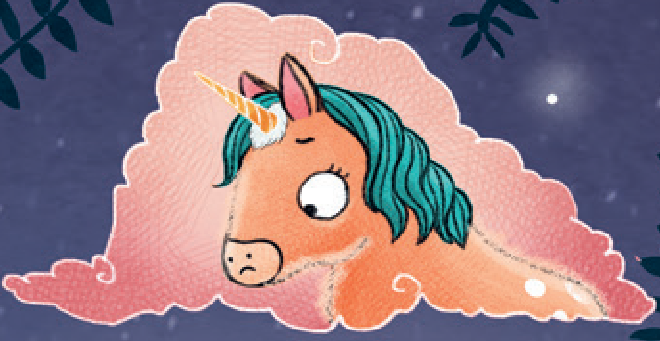
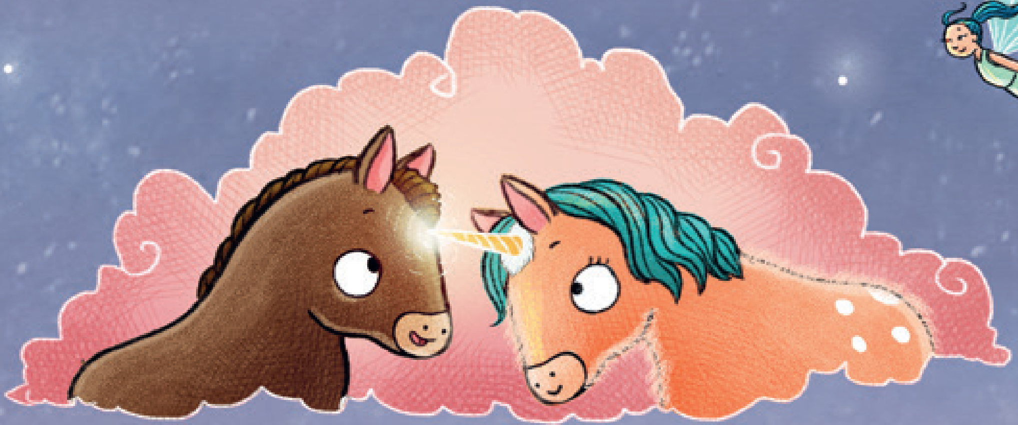
It happens that a horse or pony wishes endlessly to be a unicorn. So much so that it even becomes sick with sadness. These animals are also called no-horns.



And it happens that a unicorn has no desire to be a unicorn at all. It would rather gallop in paddocks and eat grass and have nothing to do with magic.

When no-horn and unicorn meet, they can swap.



The unicorn nudges the forehead of the no-horn with its horn,
then both recite this spell three times:
"My horn is your horn, and your horn is my horn.
No-horn becomes unicorn, unicorn becomes no-horn."
And then the spell takes place. The no-horn grows a horn on its forehead, and the unicorn's horn falls off and turns to glitter.

Have you ever seen a horse that has a white spot on its forehead? They say that's where the horn used to be when it was a unicorn.

Unicorns and children are particularly fond of each other. But unicorns also have many friends in the animal kingdom. All animals that also have horns are on the same wavelength with unicorns. At the annual horn conference, the horned animals present each other with new games and practical tricks they have discovered.

Among the other mythical creatures unicorns, of course, have some friends. And they get along super well with dinosaurs _ of course, they have horns, after all.

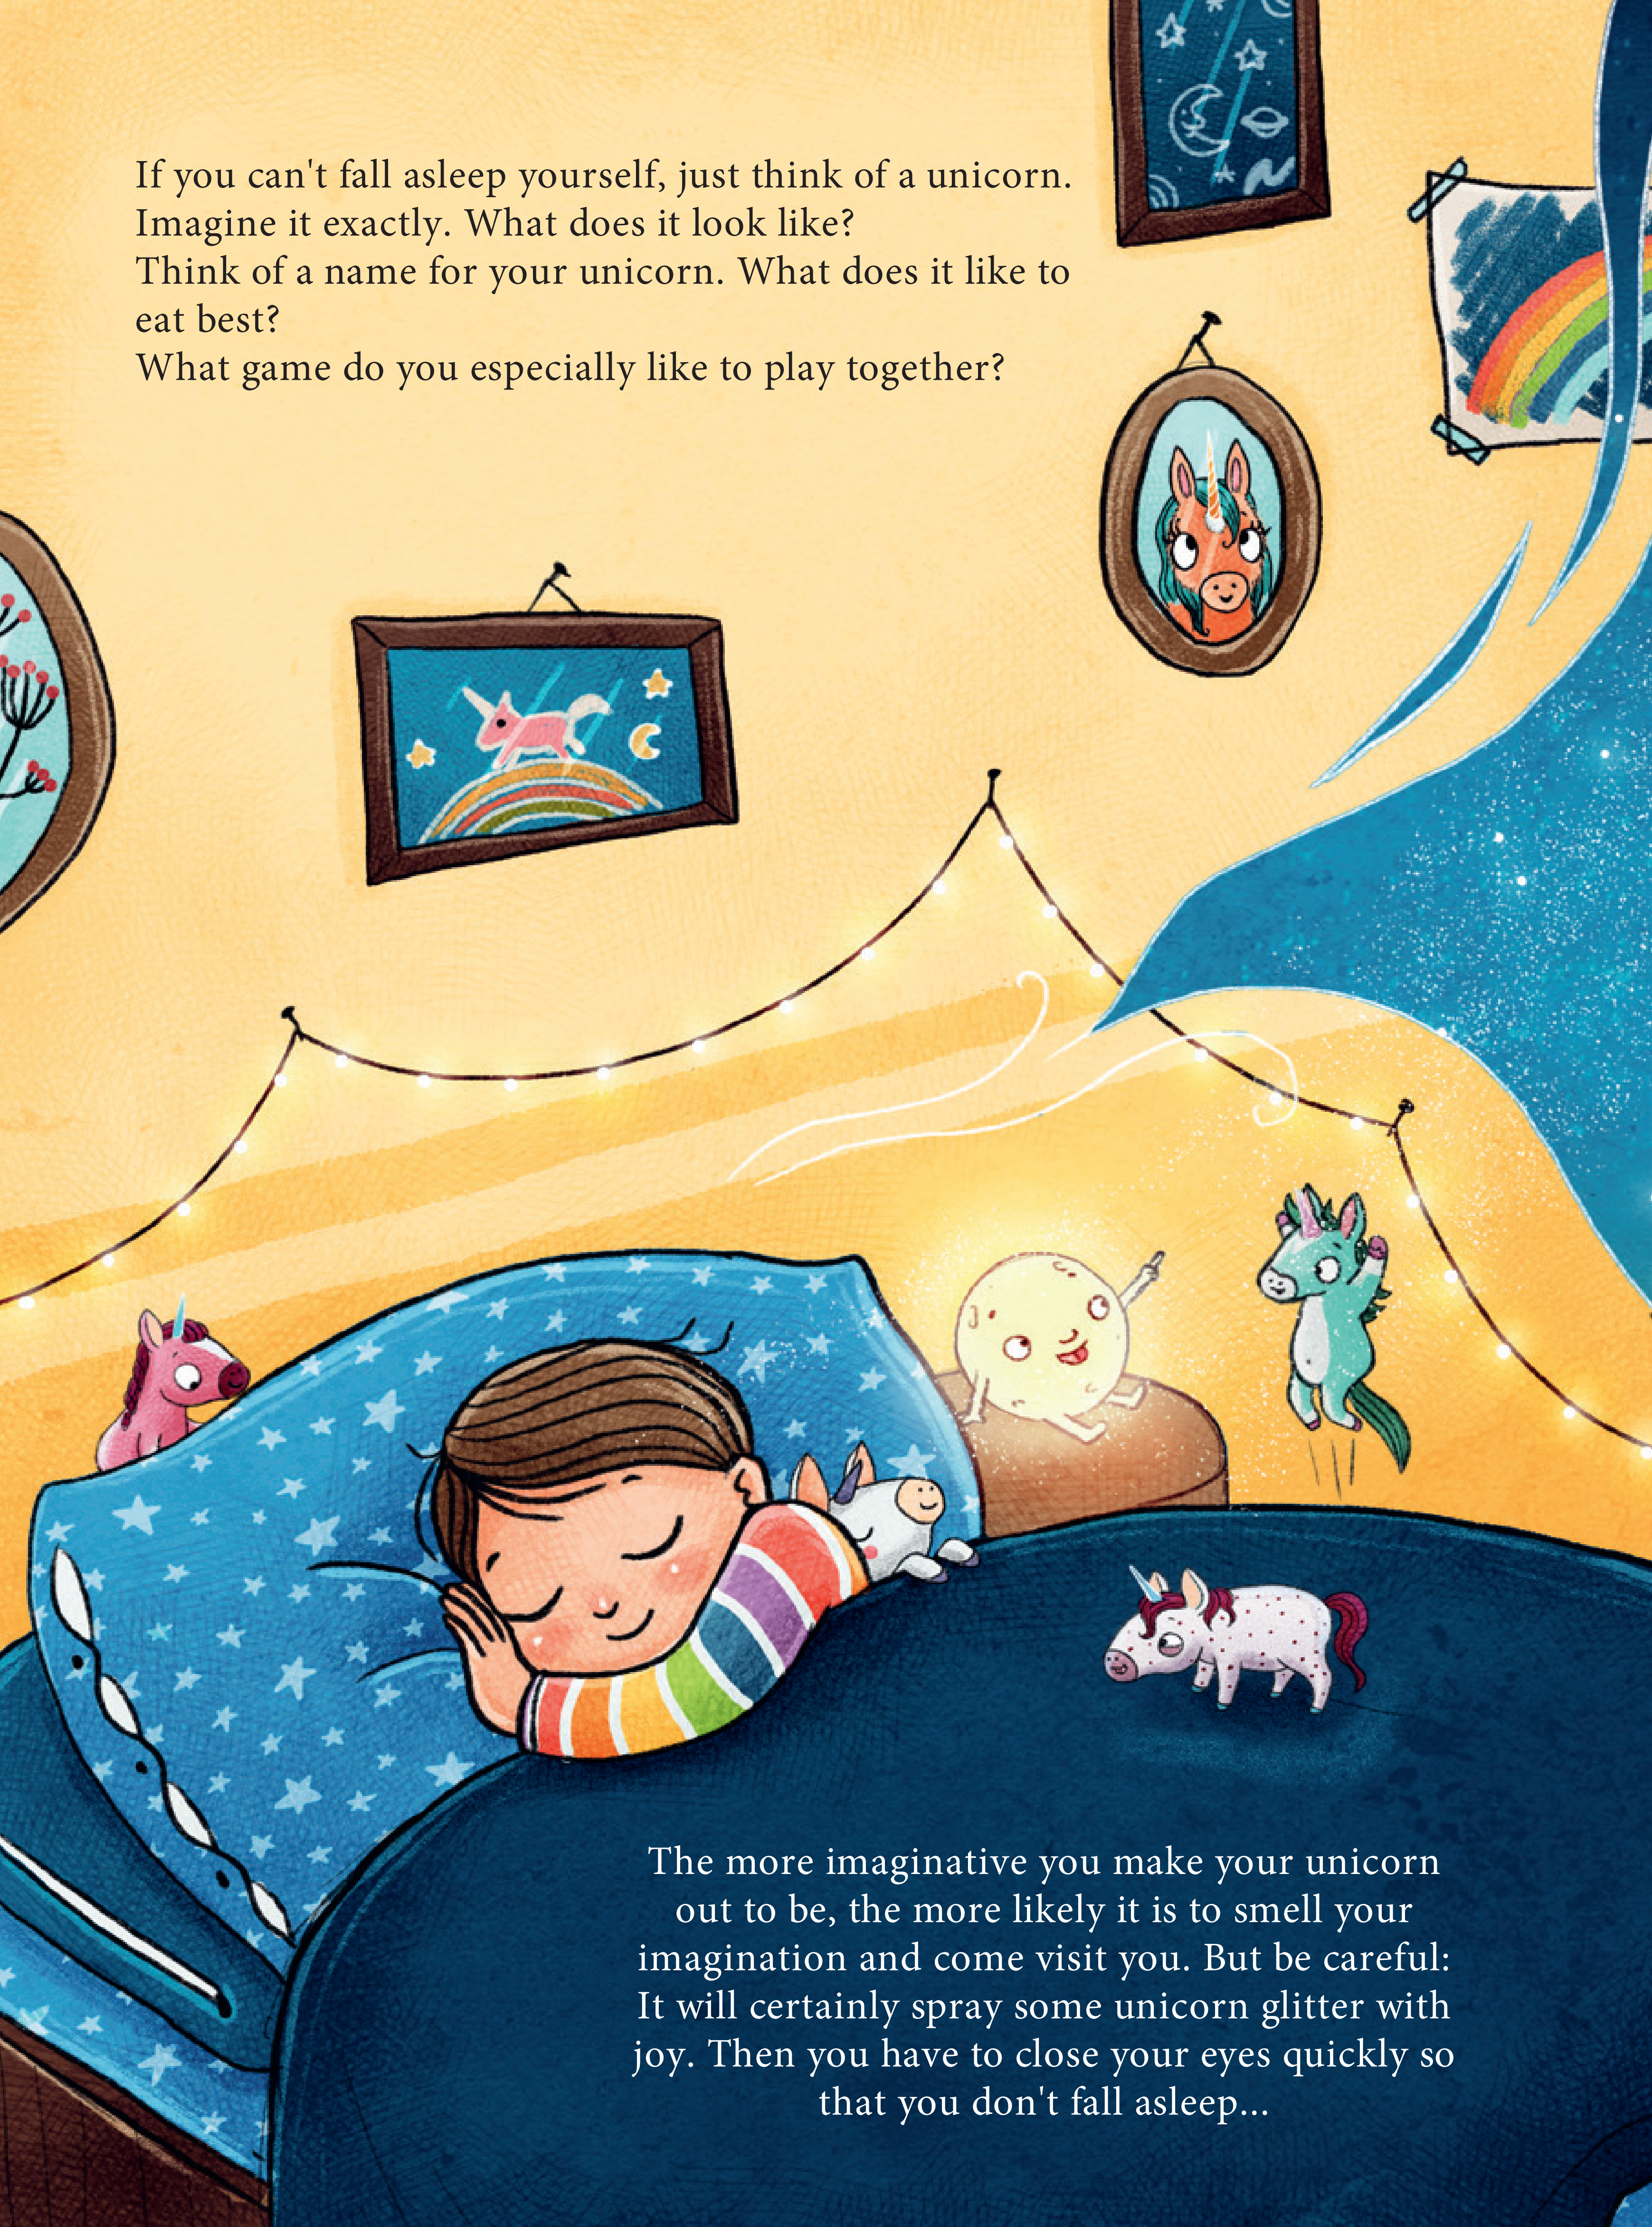
Elves and unicorns actually also like each other. But elves are sometimes quite cheeky. If it gets too colorful for the unicorns, they spray glitter neatly out of their horn. Elves love glitter, and they always forget that if you get unicorn glitter in your eyes, you immediately fall asleep. The unicorns themselves, of course, close their eyes as a precaution.

If you can't fall asleep yourself, just think of a unicorn. Imagine it exactly. What does it look like?
Think of a name for your unicorn. What does it like to eat best?
What game do you especially like to play together?



The more imaginative you make your unicorn out to be, the more likely it is to smell your imagination and come visit you. But be careful: It will certainly spray some unicorn glitter with joy. Then you have to close your eyes quickly so that you don't fall asleep...
